

Being a Family Medicine physician at Primary Care Associates of Appleton allows me the ability to offer my patients the best individualized evidence-based care I can without limitations. I became interested in the medical profession as a child on our dairy farm, combining an interest of science with a desire to help others. I enjoy the variety Family Medicine offers, caring for patients of all ages with differing problems from day-to-day, as well as helping prevent illness and disease when able.

I take pride in being an integral part of my patients' and their family's healthcare, developing relationships built on trust. I try to explain things thoroughly while encouraging patients to ask questions and be proactive in their care.
