

Michael T. Werner, MD

As a member of the Wisconsin Army National Guard Medical Corps, I spent time in Iraq providing medical care to coalition military personnel as well as Iraqi nationals. The opportunity to serve my country and provide care to others in this environment solidified my values of service, community, leadership, and teamwork.

I went into health care with one goal - to help people. Whether this is resolving a child's sore throat, getting an athlete back in the game, helping someone through a difficult time in their life, or holding a hand with a person facing the end of life, being able to provide help is the most rewarding aspect of my job. Each visit may have a different end-point, but if a patient leaves feeling better, is more knowledgeable, and has been able to ask the questions they need to ask, I feel I have done my part to help them.

Education

Medical degree:

Medical College of Wisconsin - Milwaukee, WI

Residency:
